

Cookie Policy

This Cookie Policy explains what cookies are, how Terragon Group uses them on the applicable digital channels and what benefits they bring to you.

Cookies: What are they?

A cookie is a small text file that is stored in your computer, tablet or phone when you visit a website.

E.g

Session Cookies - These cookies are deleted when you close your browser.

Persistent Cookies - These ones remain on your device until they expire, or you delete them from your cache and enables us to remember things about you as a returning visitor.

To find out more about cookies, including how to see what cookies have been set and how to manage and delete them, visit <http://www.allaboutcookies.org/>. By clicking and opening this link you are migrating from Terragon Group secure site to a third-party website. We make no representation as to the security features on the site or the level of security available on the site. It is your responsibility to protect your device or system through which you access the third party's website. Alternatively, you can search the internet for other dependent information on cookies

Cookies – how we use them

If you delete cookies relating to this website, we will not remember things about you, including your cookie preferences, and you will be treated as a first-time visitor the next time you visit the site. We use cookies (and other similar technologies) to:

- Provide products and services that you request and to provide a secure online environment
- Manage our marketing relationships.
- Improve the performance of our services to you.
- Help us decide which of our products, services and offers may be relevant to you.
- Give you a better online experience and track our website performance.
- Help us make our website more relevant to you.